SUBJECT: UN/1267 SANCTIONS: COUNCIL ADOPTS RESOLUTION 1822
SETTING OUT STRATEGIC VISION FOR 1267 REGIME

REF: A. STATE 69956
1B. USUN 00421

Classified By: Political Minister-Counselor Jeffrey DeLaurentis, for reasons 1.4 (B) AND (D)

11. (U) The Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1822 on June 30 (see full text in paragraph 5), setting out the Council's strategic vision for the sanctions regime concerning al-Qaida and the Taliban, established pursuant to resolution 1267 (1999), and extending the mandate of the 1267 Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team ("the Monitoring Team") until December 30, 2009. The resolution reaffirms the Security Council's commitment to combating the threat posed to international peace and security by al-Qaida and the Taliban.

12. (U) In response to public criticism that the Council's decisions to impose targeted sanctions are opaque, the resolution also introduces several measures intended to ensure fairness and transparency in the 1267 Sanctions Committee's procedures. These measures include: requiring states that request new sanctions to provide information on the proposed party's association with al-Qaida or the Taliban that may be released to the public; making available on the Committee's website a summary of this public information; and, strengthening the call on states to notify parties when they are listed for sanctions. The Council also significantly expanded the Committee's procedures for reviewing the sanctions list, mandating that the Committee review every entry on the list over a two-year period to ensure that the list is as accurate as possible and that the listings remain relevant. At the completion of the comprehensive review, the Committee will review on an annual basis each entry that has not been reviewed in three or more years.

13. (U) Following the adoption of the resolution, Costa Rica delivered an explanation of vote, a result of San Jose's dissatisfaction with a clause in the resolution that implies that the Committee's current listing and delisting procedures are fair and clear in their present form. (Operative paragraph 28 reads, "encourages the Committee to continue to ensure that fair and clear procedures exist for placing individuals and entities on the Consolidated List.") In his statement, Costa Rica DPR Saul Weisleder underscored that the fight against terrorism must be conducted in accordance with the UN Charter and international humanitarian, refugee, and human rights law, and that action that undermines these instruments will not result in a more effective international response to the threat of terrorism. Weisleder expressed concern at the "legislative scope of the sanctions," and argued that the asset freeze and travel ban limited fundamental freedoms, and that the imposition of these measures should therefore be in accordance with human rights law. Costa Rica welcomed the progress the resolution represented, noting each of the new elements introduced by the text, and expressed Costa Rica's gratitude for their inclusion, but added that paragraph 28 did not send a strong enough message about ensuring due process in the Committee's listing and delisting procedures. Weisleder opined that an independent panel with the authority to review the Committee's decisions on listing (as proposed by Liechtenstein, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, and Germany) was necessary, and urged the Council to consider the establishment of such a panel. No other delegation took the floor.

¶4. (C) Comment: To have amended operative paragraph 28 of the resolution to suggest that the Committee's procedures for listing and delisting are not in fact fair and clear, as Costa Rica demanded, would have been tantamount to the Council agreeing that its own procedures for imposing targeted sanctions are not valid, and by extension the decisions to sanction those on the list were not valid. This would have provided further fodder for the criticism about the lack of "due process" in the Council's sanctions regimes, while taking the focus away from the significant improvements to the Committee's procedures--such as the comprehensive review of the sanctions list and the expanded review process--that the USG agreed to implement despite the significant demands such innovations place on USG resources. It took several hours of negotiation with the Costa Rican delegation the night before the adoption to persuade them not to make amendments to the text from the floor reflecting their due process concerns. End Comment.
